@ COMPTON

Leadership is different in the creative industries. It's not about telling people what to do. It's about bringing people with you. And it's not about the position you hold. It's about who you are.

---

In this course, we explore the differences. We'll teach you how creative leaders make decisions – and what matters to them. Working one on one, we'll help you create a leadership plan that reflects your personal goals and values.

Led by Compton founder Dr David Court, this course is about preparing for a creative leadership role – whether for a business, a team, a project or a process.

The course is designed for creative people who are busy, ambitious, and ready to take the next step.

LEADERSHIP

Compton is the business school for creative people. We teach business, entrepreneurship, finance and leadership – all through a creative lens. Our graduates have the skills and confidence to grow into senior roles. Studying at Compton opens new doors.

“Doing this course, I have learned that no obstacle is unique to me. There is an established body of business knowledge to draw on to tackle any decision I need to make in the business.”

“Learning in such a collaborative way means that I get access to a vast number of different people’s experiences and ideas. It has really stepped up my level of collaborative thinking.”

---

“It has sharpened my strategic thinking which has clearly been beneficial to the creative business idea we are developing, but, more surprisingly, in my daily life and career.”
